What does it mean to preside like a woman at the Eucharist? Do women do it differently, or should they? How do lay women and men experience women's priestly ministry? This is an accessible, broadly popular book, pushing the boundaries in new and unusual ways, and making a serious contribution to feminist and liturgical debate. Basic parliamentary procedure workbook. Called to Preside is a complete guide to the art and craft of presiding at public prayer. Theresa Cotter lays a solid groundwork for those new to the study of liturgy and encourages novice presiders with numerous suggestions for practicing presiding skills. This handbook will serve as an invaluable reference and resource throughout your presiding ministry. Topics include: -the call to preside; -common words with special meanings in the context of liturgy; -the presider as a person of prayer; -signs and symbols; -liturgical essentials; -methods to sharpen presiding skills; -the public prayer of the faith community; -tips for meeting ongoing presiding challenges; -a wealth of resources for continued growth and learning. In the introduction, Cotter writes, "We need to learn about liturgy, about symbols, rituals, and rites. We need to learn about presiding and practice its skills. We need to evaluate our own giftedness and remain open to the workings of the Holy Spirit. Above all we need to pray. . . . This handbook will help in both the discerning process and the learning process. It can enable us to respond with wisdom, courage, generosity, confidence, and enthusiasm. If our call to preside is authentic, the Spirit will ignite within us a desire to preside and to preside well. The most tentative maybe will be transformed into an enthusiastic yes." Joseph Smith's father, Joseph Smith Sr., first occupied the hereditary office of Presiding Patriarch of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Thereafter, it became a focal point for struggle between those appointed and those born to leadership positions. This new edition of Lost Legacy updates the award-winning history of the office. Irene M. Bates and E. Gary Smith chronicle the ongoing tensions around the existence of a Presiding Patriarch as a source of conflict between the Smith family and the rest of the leadership. Their narrative continues through the dawning realization that familial authority was incompatible with the LDS's structured leadership and the decision to abolish the office of Patriarch in 1979. This second edition, revised and supplemented by author E. Gary Smith, includes a new chapter on Eldred G. Smith, the General Authority Emeritus who was the final Presiding Patriarch. It also corrects the text and provides a new preface by E. Gary Smith. Reprint of the original, first published in 1871. Excerpt from Opinion of Hon. D. C. Glenn, Attorney General of Mississippi; Presiding as Special Chancellor, in the Superior Court of Chancery, at Jackson, June Term, 1854: In the Case of James L. Calcote, Complainant, Vs. Frederick Stanton and Henry S. Buckner, Defendants This case has been argued and submitted on the demurrer of the defendants to the complainant's bill. The facts charged in the bill are substantially as follows: The defendants, together with M. B. Hamer, who died April, 1842, had been during the years 1841 and 1842, and for several years prior thereto, partners in trade, doing business in the city of New Orleans, under the style of Buckner, Stanton & Co., Buckner being the resident and sole managing partner; and in the city of Natchez, under the style of Stanton, Buckner & Co., said Stanton being the resident and sole managing partner; and in Yazoo city, under the style of M. B. Hamer being the resident; and sole managing partner. Although composed of these individual members, the three firms were entirely, separate and distinct from each other; and kept their business, books and accounts accordingly. The firms from 1841, and for several years before that time, were insolvent. And so were the individual members, and so continued until Buckner and Stanton were declared bankrupts. On the 21st July, 1842, Stanton, as an individual, and as a member of the three firms, filed his petition in bankruptcy, in the United States Bankrupt Court in Mississippi, and on the 8th November, 1842, was declared a bankrupt, and on the 21st February, 1843, received his discharge. On the 18th July, 1842, Buckner, as an individual, and as a member of the three firms, filed his petition in bankruptcy, in the United States Bankrupt Court in, Louisiana, and on the 5th September, 1842, was declared a bankrupt, and on the 5th of December, 1842, received his discharge. These applications, and the proceedings under them, were made by the defendants, in concert with each other, with an agreement to continue in business when they received their discharge. Joseph Sill was appointed assignee in the case of Buckner.

An arson in New Rhodes reveals the body of Julia Mae Jefferson, an eight-year-old African American girl in the city's North Central District. Jack LeClere, the top homicide detective in the New Rhodes Police Department, is paired with a new partner for the case, Clyde Burris, a former New York City homicide-turned-New Rhodes PD Internal Affairs detective. Jack and Burris have a mutual distrust of each other, but that's the least of their worries. In the heat of the ashes of that row-house, the search for a brutal killer awaits. New Rhodes is a city on the edge. An influx of new police recruits aren't adjusting to the community they serve. A fight during a protest at a defunded community center begins a back-and-forth struggle between the New Rhodes Police and the North Central community that threatens the relationships that Jack and Burris need to find leads in Julia Mae's case, including the already fractured relationship with the community's lead activist, Marcus Ellison. A well-intentioned move by Jack to help with her funeral backfires as Ellison discovers the true nature of her murder that same day. Julia Mae's world was one of neglect—of a child, and in fact, many of the North Central children—falling through the cracks. Jack and Burris follow her through those cracks and discover an underbelly of abuse and an industry of exploitation in the guise of a daycare center called Mount Vision. Jack and Burris, through their own struggle to build trust in a city where little can be found, find something that even the most cynical activists could never have imagined—a true wolf in sheep's clothing, and a monster with an SS tattoo and a rebel flag in his window. To give Julia Mae justice, Jack, Burris and Marcus Ellison must make a temporary peace, and the city must come face-to-face with the fruits of its indifference. Praise for PRESIDING OVER THE DAMNED: "Presiding Over the Damned is a journey into the heart of darkness. Lucky for us Detective Jack LeClere is our fearless guide through the shadows." —S. A. Cosby, author of My Darkest Prayer "Holy Moley! I was just going to read the first chapter of Liam Sweeny's new novel, Presiding Over the Damned, and seven hours later, I finished it. What a page turner! Not since Peter Benchley's Jaws have I had a novel pull me into the story with such voracity that I was afraid to stop reading, lest I miss what was coming next! The characters are crafted so skillfully that I felt I knew them, maybe I've even worked with them. Even the criminals seemed familiar. The story is so skillfully written, it almost seemed like Liam had worked with me at some point. On a scale from one to ten stars, I give this novel ten stars and highly recommend it to everyone." —Michael G. Edwards, author of the Mike J. Rock, NYPD Homicide series "Take a deep breath before cracking the spine of Liam Sweeny's latest Jack LeClere novel, Presiding Over the Damned. It will be a while before you draw another one. Jack LeClere returns, hits the ground running, and paces the reader through a deliciously twisted plot peppered with whip-crack dialogue amid breakneck pacing. If you have to pick one detective novel for 2018, make it Liam Sweeny's Presiding Over the Damned. Sweeny continues to deliver and should be on everyone's Must Read list.” —Eryk Pruitt, Anthony-nominated author of What We Reckon “Jack LeClere is a cop you want on your side. Liam Sweeny is a writer you want on your bookshelf. Presiding Over the Damned, more than a great addition to the LeClere series: a book that will not only gut you, but one you can't help but cheer on.” —Beau Johnson, author of The Big Machine Eats “Presiding Over the Damned is more than just a flash-bang police procedural; it's also unafraid to plunge into some of the roughest, toughest issues of our time. If you're a fan of Michael Connelly or George Pelecanos, you're going to dig the heck out of this.” —Nick Kolakowski, author of Boise Longpig Hunting Club “Fast and violent like a fire, strong like Jack LeClere's knuckles, and as brutal as a kid in a body bag, Liam Sweeny's prose is a pleasure to read. Here's an author doing the thing instead of talking about it, and he does it in a commanding manner and with an undeniable touch of swag. This is solid crime fiction done right.” —Gabino Iglesias, author of Zero Saints “Sweeney's Presiding Over the Damned is a finely tuned crime fiction piece of powerful and provocative writing. The dialogue roars with authenticity, the tension is thick and the story is marinated in reality. If you are a fan of hard boiled crime fiction moving at the speed of a bullet, you'll want to read this book. Sweeney's books will certainly occupy a prominent place on my bookshelf.” —Pam Stack, host, Authors on the Air “This profile of our twenty-sixth Presiding Bishop--and the first female Primate in the Anglican Communion--introduces Katharine Jefferts Schori, a woman characterized by her commitment to reconciliation, cooperation, and collaboration. Quoting many with whom she has worked, it offers a glimpse at the complex yet dynamic centeredness likely to be the hallmark of her episcopacy.”--Publisher's website.
